Introduction

At the Castello di Racconigi a small group of artefacts from South America is preserved, which arrived at the royal residence following the journey made by the Crown Prince Umberto of Savoy (later Umberto II) in the summer of 1924 to Argentina, Chile, Uruguay and Brazil. Among the places visited were: Buenos Aires, Rosario di Santa Fe, Tucumán, Córdoba, Mendoza, the Andes, Santiago de Chile, Valparaíso, Montevideo and Bahia. On that occasion the heir to the Italian throne received gifts, objects, books and photographic albums, both from local institutions and from the many Italians who had emigrated to those countries.
